"I did; and found him quite willing to assist I had a deed of gift drawn up, which he will bring this evening, written out in proper form. I also begged him to join you, as trustee for the management of the property, and to provide for Walter's wants until he becomes of age. I hope you will not object to this."

"Don't imagine I could forget myself," she said merily. "I took good care to keep enough for my own livelihood; especially as I mean to look out for a situation in some respectable family where there is an orphan to bring up.

"I should not be forlorn or forsaken even then," she said very earnestly. "I shall find a home for my old age in my dear Walter's house, and I hope his young wife will never turn me from the door." A long silence en-

"You don't seem to be entirely satisfied with my plan, brother," she began again. "But it really is the best plan for all of us. When your son is taken off your hands, you will be able to do what you have wished for all your life. You can sell this house and garden, give up the business, and go to Italy for a year or two. In that lovely Italy you rave about, you would have been necessary for a simple affair would soon shake off your horrid rheumatisms, of business. In my office I could not thank that torment you so. He hid his rough grey head upon her lap, smothering the strange sounds that fell from his lips stammering and sobbing in wordless protesta

"Don't, brother," she whispered in a trembling voice, bending over him; "come to your senses, and hear me out. I have a favor to ask of you in return, that you may not feel inclined to grant me, and in case you should re fuse it, the whole plan falls to the ground."

He looked up in her face, without rising from his knees. The great strong man lay helpless and crushed by the tempest of feeling that had swept over him. He had taken one of her hands, and pressed it to his lips. She went on.

"This thing I am going to do would be of no use whatever, if Walter ever came to knew I did it. He is not a child now; he has the pride and sensitiveness of a man. Were he to know he owed this inheritance to me, he never would accept it: my most solemn protestations would be in vain. I might swear to him that all my happiness is placed in his; that the only interest I have on earth is to provide for his future welfare; it would be no use, he would reject it all. Therefore it behooves us to take the proper measures to deceive him; and the safest way to deceive him in this, would be to undeceive him in another matter: he must know his father, and his father must be thanked for the change in his fortunes."

The Meister sprang to his feet, and paced to and fro in violent agitation. "Never!" he cried at last; "It is impossible.

Helen. I can't do it." "What can't you do?" and she looked very grave. He stood still before her with an imploring look.

"Don't ask me to do that," he said. "It costs me nothing to take the dear boy to my heart, and call him son, if you think it is in your power to absolve me from the promise I made your sister. But that I should appear as with bright red ones. It is a fact, for nineteen his benefactor, I who have done him and his poor mother such grievous wrong-" She in-

"That wrong has been expiated, brother, and what there may remain will be expiated now by the penance I prescribe. I too have some wrong to expiate, though not of my own doing. Had my poor sister, in the delirium of her revenge, not destroyed the inheritance you had a right to expect, things would have happened differently. Promise me, therefore to do as I erently. Promise me, therefore to do as I ask you, and give me your hand upon it. Be She lieve me, it will be the saving of us all." rose. "I hear steps in the passage," she said; "if it be Walter, I hope you will not let this night pass without having spoken to him. Only do not tell him that it was I who proposed his going; he has a real father now. Half an hour later, she heard Dr. Hansen's step on the pavement of the little court, which he crossed, and she saw that he was coming through the garden gate. She made an effort to conceal a gust of emotion that suddenly came over her, and she looked searchingly in his searious face. "What news do you bring me? I hope we have not forgotten anything that may prove a hindrance to so simple a desire as mine is?"

"Nothing," he answered gravely. "It is settled in the most formal manner, and all I have to do in this house in the capacity of lawyer, may be considered as definitely concluded.

Will you forgive me, if I say that the lawyer you might refuse to believe the papers when you had not specified in silencing the most specified in the most formal manner, and all I have a superannuated couple who have fed the gosting with our follies, for some time.

He paused, as if in expectation of some sign to interpret in his favor or against him. She said nothing and his courage rose.

"You know how I feel," he continued, "and after our recent conversation on Sunday even hopeful. Only the day after, I ascertained from your brother-in-law, what I had already surmised with pain, that your reason for reject ing every suitor who presented himself, was because you felt no security that he sought you not for your fortune, but for yourself.

"It was small consolation for me to know that it was not, in the first instance, any special aversion to myself, that had cut me off from all my hopes of happiness. as farewell, and so they parted. Four weeks later, the same pale crescent that had lighted our yellow-haired young friend through the woods that evening, was shining in full refulgence upon a street of a great city, in the quarter chiefly inhabited by students and artists. Close to the open window of a small ledging on the third story, catching the last glimps of fading light, a young man was seated before a great drawing board, with bold pencil drawing great broad sepia lines, to relieve with student song as he walked up stairs—a very light and shade a correct and tasteful archi-unusual circumstance. tectural ornament.

They not only wrote, but had a passion for writing, as the learned of these latter days have, to their great delight, found out. Every surface that would receive heiroglyphics was covered with inscriptions. Rocks, stones, walls, furniture, implements, coffins, tombs, as well as the papyri, were all left in a condition to tell their wendrous tales; and, mirabile dictu! we did not know till about fifty years ago that they had any tale to tell! Yes; for fifty years only we have known that they had an accessi-ble meaning; and they have been there, some of them, for fifty centuries, challenging the regard of races, which nevertheless grew more

The well-know exploits of Sesostris go to Asia Minor, and part of Europe, and then returned. They maintained great wars too in their own land, sometimes Egyptian being arrayed against Egyptian, and sometimes against troublesome neighbors. If we may entirely believe the inscriptions and pictures, they were a very formidable poeple indeed, terrible rough customers to meet in anger. But there is much reason to suppose that the language of the inscriptions is unwarrantably tall, and that the tableaux exhibit a decidedly partial view of operations. And this exaggeration has so damaged their reputation that some writers doubt whether the great Sesostria' expeditions be not fables, and whether the exploits of the professing conquerer were not confined to the neighborhood of the Nile. That this people constructed war-chariots there can be no doubt. Homer says that through each of the hundred gates of Thebes issued two hundred men with horses and chariots; and we know that there were six hundred chariots with the army that pursued after Israel. These war-chariots appear to have been a magnificent construction, though they were very light—the smooth, level roads of Egypt not demanding clumsy strength. N. Kenrick says in general terms : as all the essential principles which regulate the construction and draft of carriages are exemplified in the war-chariots of the Pharoahs, so there is nothing which modern taste which we do not find a prototype in the monuments of the eighteenth dynasty." The covered passages had trap doors in the roofs to enable the besiegers to reconnoitre, or possibly to muster on the top and shoot from a vantage point. Scaling-ladders and all the arts of escalade were perfectly understood. The battering-ram was a common expedient; the Egyptians, being such adepts in qarrying, were not slow to attach the miner to an obtrusive wall, and bring it scientifically down. According to the present state of Egyptian science, the great flourishes about victories were not borne out by corresponding attention to, or knowledge of, the art of war; but it is much safer to mention what the Pharoahs and their people did, than what they did not, for putting away the letter in his pocket, he went downstairs, and away towards a distant quarter as they practised anything we know of. The founder of the Mohammedan religion or Jews. He regarded himself as the apostle designed by God to be the successor of Moses and Jesus. His mission was to exterminate the worshippers of idols, and to persecute the disciples of those who believe in one God. Numerous passages in the Koran attest this fact, and furnish ample evidence of his toleration in matters of religion. "In religious matters," he says, "there should be no correction, for truth will always distinguish itself from error. All who believe in one God-Jews Sabeans and Christians-will not suffer in the Day of Judgment if they practice virtue." Chap v. verse 73, "If any one say to you, 'Be a Jew or a Christian,' reply to him: 'We believe in God, and in all which was handed down to us by Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac and Jacob, and in the book of Moses and Jesus; we make no difference between them." Chap. iv. ver.

Such were the sentiments of the founder of the Mohammedan religion, and it was not until some time after his death that his followers, pandoning the doctrine of toleration inculcated by him, confounded both the Israeli e and the Christian with infidels.

In the persecution of both, they followed the example of the Christians themselves, who, forgetting the lessons of peace and good will to man taught by the founder of their religion, persecuted the Jews and each otter, with far more cruelty than ever Jew or Gentile was persecuted by the disciples of Mohammed.

The toleration extended by Turkey to the Israelites has at all times been as great as that extended to them by the Christian nations in Europe. The very presence of the Israelites in that empire, and the increase in their numbers, attest the fact. Driven from Spain by Christian intolerance in the sixteenth century, they found a welcome in Constantinople from the Sultan, who permitted them to take up their residence in the quarter of the city known by the name of Balaat, situated on the Golden Horn. From thence they spread themselves from the villages along the Bosphorous and other portions of the Turkish empire.

In the description given of the city of Constantinople by the Rabbi Benjamin, of Tudela, the Jews in that capital amounted to two thousand Rabbinites and five hundred Caraites. They now count some twenty or thirty thousand souls. Their number in Turkey in Europe is variously estimated from seventy to one hundred thousand. During the reign of Mohammed III., they occupied the positions of directors of mint, and were the bankers of the Sultan and the wealthy Pashas, who regarded all labor as beneath their dignity. Their accumulation of wealth was the cause of their downfall. Armenian bankers were substituted in their places, and in the course of time, the Jews, losing the influences they once had with the Turks, lell to the low condition in which they are now seen among that I regret to say, however, that the Ottomans the Christians. By the latter they were for a gogues were destroyed, but they were sublong time accused of stealing once a year a Unristian child, in order to mingle its blood in their festivals, as a retaliation upon their persecutors. Exasperated by this belief, they were on such occasions buffeted, stoned, and not unfrequently killed by the followers of Christ. These unprovoked attacks upon them finally became a scandal to the Christian world, and at the solicitation of a number of leading Israelites in London and elsewhere, the Sultan ordered the matter to be investigated; and the charges against them were proved to be absurd and false, equally as much so as the imputation alleged by the heathens against the ancient Christians of sacrificing children and eating their flesh, or of the orthordox Christians against the Christian Carpocratians and Mortanists, who, under the appellation of Gnostics, were accused of taking the blood of infants to make their sacramental bread.

Persecutions based upon this accusation have, since then, to a great degree, ceased; and the condition of the Israelies in Turkey in Europe is in every respect as agreable as is that their brethren in the Russian Empire. They have synagugues and schools, and are permitted to enter the Sultan's medical college. Among them are now many wealthy bankers. The majority, however, are in a state of apparent poverty, and are looked upon with con-tempt, both by Christians and Mohammedans. They occupy themselves in the lowest pursuits, are collectors and venders of rags and old clothes, and make a living by acting as guides to the strangers who visit Constantinople. The oppression under which they had lived for conturies has crushed out the spirit of the people in Turkey, and one can scarcely realize the fact that the submissive, numble Israelites, who permit themselves in Constantinople to be bufleted and maltreated by, the Turkish and Christian boys, without attempting to resent it, can be the descendants of that brave and warlike race, who, in ages gone by, attested what's the matter?" "Rabbi, have you not their valor by teats of arms, and their desperation by acts of self-sacrifice, almost unparalleled in the annals of history. How true it is that courage and national pride are blasted as effectually by long oppression as are the flowers of summer by the frosts of winter! The pressure of tyranny upon a people surely dwarts their courage and self-respect as does prolonged pressure upon "matter distort and render hideous its natural proportions. The courage of the Jews of Kaiber, and of certain tribes in Arabia, who have lived under their them shut the large gate and open the little own Sheiks, and who are a terror to the Turkish caravan, attests the truth of this as-

The descendants of the Spanish Jews in Turkey have light complexions and often red hair; as a race they are well-formed, with intelligent face. Their women are among the most beau-tiful females in the East. Their blue or grey eyes and their complexion contrasts most favor-ably with the dark eyes and raven locks of their aisters, whose ancestors inhabited more eastern climes. Their language is a sweet Spanish patois: they, however, speak both the Turkish and Greek dialects.

The Turks allowed them a quasi government of their own. A Grand Rubbi (Kakam Bachi) and two Rabbis, chosen for life by the nation, constitute a tribunal to which is confided the executive powers of the Jewish nation. It is a supreme tribunal. A counsel of seven, noma supreme tribunal. A counsel of seven, nominated for life, has a right to make remonstrances to this tribunal and to convoke a national assembly. Questions decided by this assembly must receive the corsent of the Rabbinical triumvirate before they become obligatory upon the nation. From Jewish tribunals,

THE ISRAELITES IN THE OTTOMAN EM- there is an appeal to the Turkish courts, which, however, is never resorted to. Their Mag-istrates receive the name of "rigidores," the appellation by which they were known in Spain.

No people in the Turkish empire take less interest in politics than the Israelites. By them, both Turks and Christians are regarded with little favor. From the indifference of the Mohammedans in matters of proselytism, they have something to hope; from the desire of the Christians to draw all to their own church, they have much to fear. To the former, the exercise of their religion gives no offense; to the bigotry and ignorance of the latter it is a source

f perpetual annoyance. When both Mussulman and Christian shall return to the spirit of religious toleration inculcated by the founders of their respective creeds, the Israelite, whose God is their God, whose Prophets are their Prophets, whose law giver and patriarchs are reverenced by both, will enjoy th t tolerance in religious matters to which every being of God's earth is entitled. Until then, that people may rest assured that their prosperity as a race will increase more under the shadow of the throne of the Sultan than under the bigotry of the Christian church as it now exists in the East.

The Jews who inhabit the provinces of Wallachia and Moldavia are generally of Spanish or Polish descent. The former are more numer ous in Wallachia, the latter in Moldavia, in the capital of which they constrtute one third of the poplation. Many of these Jews resem-ble strikingly the Tartar race, and are doubt lessly descendants of those Avars, who in the ninth century embraced Judaism. The fact that their Rabbis are called Chagan, an appellation by which the chiefs of the Avars were designated, renders this supposition more than probable.

preference for agricultural pursuits, or from a contempt for mercantile occupations, have permitted the commerce and trade of the country to tall into the hands of the Greeks or Jews. These two races have to a great degree monopolized the traffic of the provinces. A rivalry between them in usurious transactions resulted in the banishment for a time of the Jews from Wallachia. Permitted to return, they, with their mercantile rivals, soon occupied toward the middle men of Ireland did toward the inhabitants of that island.

All business transactions were carried on through them. They became the bankers, brokers, money-lenders, traders, hucksters of produce, liquor, and cattle of the country. The nobles, too proud to attend to their own affairs, appointed them as collectors of their rents, and supervisors of their estate. Their thrift and encomony enabled them to accumulate wealth, while the expensive tastes and extravagances of the Boyards necessitated the latter to borrow from them. Hence it is, that large portions of the lands of the provinces have been laypothecated for loans made by the Israelites.

From this state of things, results a secret hatred to their race, not on account of their being the creditors and not debtors of the Roumain people.

The Israelite have never been persecuted to any great extent in the Pricipalities. True it is that in the fifteenth century their synanow enjoy equal tolerance with all Christian Strange to say that the people of Roumania were less tolerant to the Mohammedan subjects of the Sultan, than they were to the Jews. The treaty made between Vlad V., prince of Wallachia, and the Sultan, Mohammed II., declared that no mosque should be erected in that province. A treaty concluded also be tween the Moldavians and Turks in 1529, contains a similar stipulation.

By these treaties, two victorious Sultans forced the provinces to acknowledge the suzeranity of the Porte, but deprived their Mussulman subjects of privileges which they conceded to Christians in the Ottoman empire.

Seldom has such abnegation of power been exhibited by Christian governments. Let us not forget then, while descanting upon the intolerance of Mohammedans, in religious and political matters, that on more than one occasion, both Israelites and Christians have found an asylum in Turkey. denied them by Governments professing the Christian which no doubt will amuse our readers: " During the campaign of Louis XIV. upon the horders of the Rhine-about one hundred and twenty-four years ago-the rabbin of Mann heim was seated in his study. A volume of the Talmud lay open before him; he studied but was interrupted from time to time; he began to be rather restless and fidgetty because the hour for studying the Talmud had struck some time ago, and not one of his scholars had as yet arrived. At length they entered, their faces pale and haggard. "Why have you been so long?" demanded the surprised rabbin heard the report?" said one of the students: "the French are at the gates of the city!" "Well," said the rabbin, "what do they want?"

They want to enter." "Is that all? Well, let them come!" "But, rabbi, they will slay every-one." The master raised his eyes for an instant, more astonished than frigthened, then passing his fingers through his long beard, and ust as he was wont to move his hand when explaining some simple Talmudic subject, he said: "Ah, well, what embarrasses you? Let one; then let them enter one after the other, then you can kill them little by little. But we have enough to do besides interfering with the affairs of the citizens and the soldiers, so come, we'll commence to study."—M. H. Z.

THE ROBBERY AT ROTESCHILD'S BANK .-At the assizes for the Seine on Thursday week lassius and Beckers, the two men who robbed Messrs. Rothschild of 2,000,000 francs, were found guilty, but with extenuating circumstances, and were erch sentenced to five years' imprisonment. It will be remembered that Beckers, who was a trusted steward of Messrs. Rothschild, falsified the books in order to conceal his defalcations.

THE king of Italy has sent Artom, an Israelite, friend and secretary of the deceased Ca vour, as Minister to the Austrian Court. Such a position is very important at the present moment. The Italian Jews look with anxiety upon the proceedings in Rome, as they expect soon to see their co-religionists in the Roman Ghetto liberated. So may it be!

THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES.

The feast of Tabernacles, like the Passover is intended to commemorate the event of Israel's delivery from Egypt. It seems, however, that this festival was instituted to celebrate the special mercy of God, exhibited in the miracle of our ancestors being provided with booths or huts during their sojourn in the wilderness, as it is said, "In booths shall ye dwell seven days * * that your generations may know that I caused the children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt." As to what these booths consisted of, how, when, and where they were constructed, there is much dissension and difference of opinion among our learned commentators. It is also noticeable why this feast was ordained to be observed at a different season of the year, namely in the month Tishri, and not in Nissan, the month in which the liberation took place. The Scriptures give no light on these topics, and like in many other instances we are left to conjectures and suppositions. Certain it seems, however, that the dwelling in booths was a circumstance and a myracle of sufficient importance to be commemorated by a special observance in future

The succoth, or booths mentioned in the text as provided for our forefathers on their departure from Egypt, Rachi understands to mean, not literally huts, but that God surrounded them with clouds for protection from the burning heat in the day, and from the storm and cold at night during their whole sojourn in the wilderness. In the Torath Cohanim we find the opinions of R. Eliezer and R. Akibah, the former thinking that Israel were provided with real huts, the latter believing that they were merely clouds, which opinion Rachi follows because it is nowhere mentioned in the Scriptures that Israel had any huts or tents in the wilderness. The opinion of Aben Ezra, who says that the people made themselves huts in the wilderness; and that of Nachmanides who says that they made tents at the beginning of winter for protection against cold, as is customary in camps, does not appear from the text which says: "When I brought them out of the land of Egypt."

The learned Wesley, in his commentary on Leviticus, says substantially as follows: On the night when the hosts of the Lord were suddenly delivered, Moses appointed a certain place where the people, scattered in Goshen and other parts of Egypt, should assemble. That place was called Succoth; not a common name of a city or town in Egypt, but so denominated from the occurrence that the people were lodged there in huts, and to this fact the text relates when it says, "in booths I made them dwell when I brought them out of the land of Egypt," not to their sojourn in the wilderness all exceedingly well attended from early mora to where the cloud was over them. A similar instance we find in Genesis 33; 17, where it re- Emanu-El, the Rev. Dr. Oehn preached an lates that Jacob journeyed to Succoth, that is, he encamped on the open field, and called the spot Succoth because he built his tents there. The origin of the feast of tabernacles there, is for which the Rev. gentlemen is noted. The similar to that of the Passover, in that baking of the unleavened dough, and the lodging in huts gave rise to the two respective festivals. Still the question arises, where could huts be found in one night, sufficient for six hundred thousand men, besides the women and children? Nor does it appear likely that they should have built them for that single night, when the next day they departed for Etham. And whether gave the city the appearance of Sunday. could they procure a sufficient quantity of branches or thatch for so many huts? It may be, however, that a large number of them were in readiness there for the use of the king's armies, or that the Almighty had by miracle caused them to grow up spentaneously, that the redeemed ones might rest under them, in the same manner as he produced the gourd for Jonas. And although this wonder is not mentioned in the Scriptures, still the expression "I same beautifully illustrated and filled with incaused them to dwell," seems sufficient to war- teresting matter well adapted the young. dwelling in booths and the reason for the obser vance, the festival itself was undoubtedly instituted as a time of rejoicing over the autumnal harvest, and of thanksgiving to God for his bounty and blessing; as it is said, "on the fifteenth day of the seventh month when ye gather in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the Lord seven days," and as such it is even of more practical importance for us at the present day, to remind us of the divine goodness shown to us during the past year which we have been permitted to survive, and in which he has mercifully dealt with us, and provided for us all our necessaries and enjoyments, which goodness demands our warmest gratitude. Another observance connected with this festival which demands our attention is the using of the four kinds of branches and fruit prescribed by the law. We are not informed why these particular kinds are to be used, nor what is the import of their being used at all; nor even the manner in which they are to be used or applied, hence the many conjectures and explanations in regard to this command. After the long discussion and disputations in the Talmud, on the subject, the four kinds now commonly used have been decided upon, without sufficient proof however, that these are exactly the four species named particularly are doubtful. Of the first it is impossible to determine whether the word now that Casarism is shattered and swept adjective, meaning beautiful or excellent, in specie named, which is commonly understood to be the myrtle-plant, the same doubt may be entertained in regard to the word השא whether it is a noun or adjective. From Nehemiah, combined monarchies of Europe deserved inviii. 15. it appears that the ער is not the or myrtle, since the two are mentioned there as distinct species. And what is of still more importance, it appears from the above text that Nehemiah and Ezra, and their contemporary teachers and leaders of the people understood the text (Lev. xxiii. 40,) in quite a de Ville of Paris. A people that has groaned different light from what we commonly take it. It seems first, that they held the passage in Leviticus as not intended to prescribe any particular species of branches, since they ordered the sympathies of mankind, no right to cover five instead of four kinds, and among them olive-branches and pine, or other resinous branches; and second that these branches were to be used for constructing the huts, as it is said, "Go ye to the mountains, and fetch olive branches, and pine branches, and myrtle branch- republican, and wholly indifferent to the claims es, and palm branches, and branches of thick and rights of other nations. The republic now trees, to make booths, as it is written, namely proclaimed in Paris is not the act of a sovereign in Leviticus.

feast of tabernacles were intended as a sign of nothing but a sign of weakness and indecision, joy on account of deliverance from the desert. where there was neither seed, nor figs, nor vines, pretense and a hazardous experiment. The nor pomegranates, nor even water to drink, into essential foundations for a republic are universa land of fruit-trees and rivers; and in memory al intelligence, virtue, morality, and true love this, God commanded us to take of the best of the fruit of the land; some having the most pleasant odor; of the most beautiful leaves, and the best even among the inferior plants, namely the willows of the brook."

Upon the whole it appears that the various allegorical explanations and symbolic allusions man, of universal, but on the narrower paths of in which some of our pious expounders have indulged are altogether without foundation; that the use of the four species was originally intended either for constructing the buts, or as specimen of the best production of the field wherein the benificent Giver had blessed his people; and that the institution of the festival was, that it should be held as a time of rejoicing and thanksgiving, as the conclusion of the harvest has been at all times, and amongst most nations, been held as a time of hilarity and feasting. And as such it may with all propriety be observed by us at present, reminding us of the mercy and favor which God has ever shown to our fathers, and of the bounty and love which we daily receive from his fartherly hand; and teaching us that as God deals benevolently with us, so should we endeavor to cultivate a similar disposition of beneficence towards our brethren of an humbler state, especially at the approach of the season when they particularly need our assistance and

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

Ever since the astounding intelligence has flashed across the Atlantic that a republic is proclaimed in Paris, public sentiment here ems to undergo a marked change, and many who were but lately unflinchingly arrayed on the side of Germany, espouse now as enthusiastically the cause of France. Whence this wonderful change? Have right and wrong changed places, and is wrong to-day what was only yesterday almost universally esteemed right? The careful analysis of this problem. the conscientions solution of this question devolving upon our free, enlightened and impartial press are all important, for the press is not merely a chronicler of passing events but, as the exponent of public opinion, also bound to sift truth from error, to combat ignorance and prejudice and to vindicate right and justice. The final valid judgment upon the merits of this war-its causes, nature and results-will be shaped by the principle and justice underlying it and by the history and character of the contending nations.

Now what are the facts? Is France a Republic? No, in name, perhaps, but not in truth. The overwhelming masses of the French which the law ordains. The first and third people who declared only four months ago, (a econd time,) for the empire are not republican and the irresponsible leaders of the left who והדר is the name of a certain tree not known to away by foreign beyonets, have seized the us, or whether it is to be understood as an reins of government and try to infuse into the nation the spirit of republicanism, are not which case the fruit to be taken would not be specified at all, but optional. Of the third of national enthusiasm, sweeping like an irresistiple avalanche over the land, embodying struggle of Germany for independence remind proclaiming equal liberty and justice for all, and defeating, impregnable in its cause, the eternal right, for everlasting peace? No creed deed the warmest sympathies of mankind, but, alas! sacrificing to the Moloch of glory and conquest—the curse of France—it degenerated into an anarchy, and finally into a despotic empire. The revolutions of 1830 and 1848, shared similar fate, and the republic of 1870 is the deed of German valor, sealed and ratified by the present rulers of France, at the Hotel for eighteen years under the worst of despotism that has twice imposed upon itself the fetters of Cæsarism, that has goaded the dynasty into a war for glory and conquest has no right to its iniquities with the holy name, "Republic." It is but a catchword, a trick, a lie, a profanation! France truly republican would welcome her deliverers from a dire tyranny, would fraternize with Germany, would recognize the justice of her fate and would hasten to offer guarantees of an honest and lasting peace, but she is not people, not the outburst of one common sentiment, not the calm, conscious, dispassionate According to Maimonides, "the four kinds declaration of one supreme will ready to inauguof boughs or branches made use of on the rate a new and a better state of things; it is a cry for help and vengeance, a manifestation of passion and frenzy, a high sounding hollow of liberty, and who can say that the French, as a people, possess the qualities requisite to uphold a republican form of government. They have tried many times and failed and they will fail this time also, because their nature is wholly unrepublican, striving after glory, conquest, supremacy and false glitter, and because they are marching, not on the broad avenues of hutheir own peculiar civilization. The French play with their rulers and dynasties even as children play with toys, but the Idea of a true Republic has not yet dawned upon them and will not until the primary and essential con-> shall be fulfilled. Monarchical Germany of to-day, with the stars of the Hohenzollern and Wittelsbachs shining bright and lustrous. is more democratic than the nominal Republic of France, an accidental and ephemeral birth of the hour, not an offspring of the instincts, desires, impulses, and necessities of the people. But even if France were republican now would that make her right and just in the struggle with Germany? The ominous word "war" that fell from Napoleon's lips was only the natural and legitimate outgrowth of a deep, indestructible sen-timent ingrafted upon the nation over which he ruled he uttered it but at the unanimous dictation of his people. The Napoleonic dynasty meant aggression, war and spoilation, the resuscitation of the empire meant a resuscitation of the couquering policy of Louis XIV. and Napoleon L. Sivide et impera, the dismemberment of Germany and the aggrandize ment of France. The German Rhinelands were to become an integral part of la belle France at all hazards and at every cost; Germany held her own only on sufferance, and noceasing were the taunts and humiliations she had to endure from her envious and selfis neighbor. The conquest of the Rhine had indeed become an article of faith infused into every new born child. Are the present republican rulers of the French, is France herself, less responsible for the war than Napoleon, Ollivier, and the Duc de Grammont? Why have the liberal leaders the so-called republicans, not used their power and influence to curb French lust of conquest, French passion for German teoritory, why have they all nursed that national sense of vanity and martial glory instead of teaching the people truly democratic principles and respect for the right of other nations? Can Germany expect any solid guarantees from them or from the French people? They are adding but insult to injury, they are but exhibiting the worst traits of human nature by shifting all the disasters of France upon Napoleon's shoulders. Napoleon was a blind instrument in the hands of the French, and those who guide the helm of state now, his enof honor, independence and national integrity, have penetrated into the heart of France and demand positive, material guarantees for a peace never again to be broken they are asked victories and to retrace their steps across the Rhine. Had the French people never before interests, I for one would heartily join with my part of that work is devoted to the history alas! Germany has to settle her reckonings the art of verification. provide against the recurrence of wanton and children may enjoy a lasting peace; they feel— and so do all the sons and daughters of Germany—that a peace without solid, material guarantees would only be the fruitful germ for new wars. Germany has never despoiled France and never will-she demands only the retrocession of her former provinces wrested from her by brute force. Is that demand un-reasonable or unjust? She demands Elsass and Lothringen, because they are German and because they alone form a bulwark against aggressive France. Germany has suffered and borne too long, has yielded too readily in times past and sacrificed too much for the sake of peace, and her patience, forbearance and magnanimity were but new incentives to French insults and spoilations. God forbid she should be faithless now to her own interests, and fail to fulfil tee sacred duties resting upon herthe duty of rendering future war impossible and of inaugurating an everlasting reign of Whatever the sentiments of Europe and America now history will vindicate Germany! And in appealing to the sympathies of the Americans at large, I feel that the Jewish heart-ever just, generous and noble, ever open to the loftiest influences and the sublimest sentiments-cannot but array itself on the side of right, justice, morality and humanity. The Hebrews of German nationality owe an everlasting debt of gratitude to the land of their France. The republic of 1789, so glorious and birth, and the foremost leaders of Jewish opinthe instincts and aspirations of the people, us of the history of the Jewish race? Does she not fight the battle for national liberty, for is more truly interested in the advencement of freedom, enlightment and progress than the Jewish, for this alone are the sure guarantees of that recognition and appreciation so long and so wrongly denied to a race oldest in culture and foremost in morality. And can any impartial observer doubt that Germany. as she leads all nations in civilization, is right and just in the combat, right and just in exacting pledges of future peace and progress never again to be violated by the conquering lust of emperors and nations. Ludwig Boerne, the great and gifted Jew, although for many years a resident of France, remained ever loyal and faithful to his native, to his German land—for he saw in the Germany of the future the cradle of the loftiest humanity and he predicted in a prophetic spirit that the glorious sun of German culture and enlightenment would ultimately dispel the clouds of ancient prejudice, error and superstition, in augurate the dawn of a new, a better and a brighter day and radiate his vivifying rays Rappelfopf. Seine Darftellung bes Menfchenthroughout all the world. And to our congratulation let it be said that much of this splendid achievement will be due to Jewish influence and inspiration, which take a leading rank in German art, sience, literature and culture, and in all matters pertaining to the progress of humanity-an influence and inspiration which promise to bring Israel nearer and nearer to its grand mission of being the Prophet and Messenger of the highest type of human civili-

Eleven hundred years had passed over the ruine of Jerusalem, when they inspired our poet with those sentiments of despair, and those hopes of a happier futurity. "Probably," says Herder, "these ruins will still for centuries live in the memory of men; millions will still there find types for true or imaginary consolation; inspirations for love or hatred hopes, presentiments, prophecies; of they are deeply rooted in the very heart of old Time, and claim their authority from the instructions of our youth and religion."

An irresistible force drew the unhappy Jehuda Hallevi from the heart of Andalusa to the deserts of Palestine. One day he sat, lost in melancholy, under the ramparts of the holy city: he loosened bis sandals, tore his garment and loudly recited his Elegy; when an Arabian warrior came by the way, and wantonly insult-ed the harmless pilgrim. Jehudah was not to len Gesichtern. Trefflich jur Geite ftanb ibm be interrupted by the invectives of the barbarian; without noticing the blasphemies of the Bebouin, he continued his contemplation in silence. The soldier, probably irritated at the stranger's imperturbable quiet, spurred his charger, and soon trampled on the mutilated corpse of Zion's mourner.

His son-in-law, Abraham Ibn Ezra, is as ustly celebrated for his numerous writings, as for his travels, and the manifold vicissitudes of his life. Besides his excellent and well-known Commentary on the Bible, there are various pieces of his poetry extant. The following remarks on the fluctuations of his fate may serve as a specimen of the hyperbolical languages to be met with in the most elegant writers of that

"If my tears flowed according to the immensity of my grief, no man could find a restingplace for his toot : but as the covenant of the Lord rose above the waters of Noah, so He also showed a rainbow unto my tears."

Of this tenor are the major part of the poet cal works of the Jews, during the age which forms the subject of our contemplation. We must not lose sight of the circumstance, that those were the gloomy days of the Crusades, when massacres of the Jews were occurrences by no means unheard of. Hence the frequent mention of the tomb, as the last refuge for the outeast Isralite, who was at the mercy of every inferiated and fanatical rabble : "Tribes of the wandering foot and weary a time to mourn, and a time to dance. At intervals the occassionally melancholy and generally grave Rabbies cast off their garments of mourning, and in festive robes they sing songs of love, they enliven their epigram matic sayings by a play on words, and at times to surrender the fruits of their dearly bought they even offer facetz, which the reader is astonished to meet with in the sacred tongue. THE CITY GARDENS .- The grand musical entertainments by the splendid orchestra of 32 pieces, under the leadership of Geo. T. Evans. draw thousands of the elite of this city to these gardens. A really fine programme is offered for the concert on Sunday afternoon next. The immense lottery wheel designed to be used in drawing the Mercantile Lottery, will be in full working operation during the afternoon.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS .- The engagement of the Osaka Troupe of Japanese performers has proved a very popular one. Hundreds of people daily witness their wonderful performances. There is no extra charge for admission in spite of the extraordinary attraction.

We hear that Mr. Woodward left lately for the East for the purpose of securing new talents and attractions.

PETERS' MUSICAL MONTHLY for October contains a large and choice collection of music, printed from full size music plates. This magazine which is very valuable to all lovers of music, is published monthly by J. L. Peters, No. 599 Broadway, New York.

OLD AND NEW .- The October number of this valuable magazine, which we find en our table, is full of interesting and select matter, and deserves to be in the hands of everyone.

NUCLEUS BILLIARD SALOON.—This splendid saloon has been entirely refitted and is now open to the public. The new billiards, which were furnished by Mr. P. Liesenfeld, are of the best and latest style. With the manifest

We copy the following from Our Selesma paper published by the well-known hardware firm of Linforth, Kellogg & Co., of this city

A Word with our Readers.—In presenting the initial number of Our Salesman to our readers, whether customers not, we have a few remarks to make in regard to its nature and design. In other words, having crossed the threshold of your office, we stand prepared to state our business, which is simply to sell "hardware." This we propose to de without any unnecessary expenditure of time on your part, or money, as well as time on ours. Instead of sending a drummer into the country once or twice a year, at considerable expense to us, and more or less annoyance to you, we intend to send Our Salesman every month, who will, at some leisure moment, quietly remind you that you can always buy the very best quality of Hardware, at the lowest market rates, of Linforth, Kellogg & Co., Nos. 3 & 5 Front street, San Francisco.

A REMARKABLE cure was lately achieved by a celebrated medical gentleman of this city. A lady of the highest society was suddenly taken ill. Despite the best medical aid, she rapidly grew worse, when a happy thought struck the Doctor. He quickly sent for one of Sullivan & Co's. splendid Cloaks, placed it upon the patient's shoulder, and she recovered immediately.

THE LATE SIEGE OF STRASBOURG is only paralleled at Lederer's, No. 18 Kearny street, whose counters are besieged from morning to night, by immense numbers of fashionable ladies purchasing his new Fall styles of trimmings, and fancy goods. The secret of Lederer's great business is that he sells the best goods at the most reasonable prices.

By the recent death, at Damascus, of Herr Joseph Elias, who was Austrian Censul for Syria, the Jews of Damascus have lost their rotector, the Christians and Mahometans their friend and adviser, and the poor of all sects their ever ready benefactor. Herr Joseph Elias could fluently speak and write in most of the modern occidental and oriental languages, and he made good use of his knowledge during thirty years' service under the successive Gov ernments of Austria. The Emperor Francis Joseph, whilst recently on a visit to the East, took every opportunity of showing the great esteem in which he held Herr Joseph from the Emperor's own hands.—J. R.

THE ASTRAL OIL,

NON-EXPLOSIVE!

Commission Merchants PACKED IN THE GUARANTY PATENT CANS, PPROVED BY THE OFFICERS OF THE

A leading Fire Insurance Companies, and endorsed by the leading chemists and scientific men as a perfectly safe Illuminator.

In addition to the testimoly of E. N. Horsford, Professor of Harvard University, and of R. Ogdon Doremus, M. D., Professor of Chemistry College of the city of New York, we subjoin the following acknowledgement from the officers of the New York Fire Insurance Companies: NEW YORK. May 13, 1869. Chas. Pratt, Dear Sir: The undersigned officers of Fire Insurance Companies have noticed, with pleasure, your endeavors to introduce a safe and reliable Illuminating Oil, in place of the cheap and lower grades of Kerosene Oil so commonly used. The merits of your "Astral" Oil, which are so generally conceded by scientific men, the Press, and the public at large, lead us to hope that your endeavors may be crowned with success, and that consumers will fully protect themselves from fire and accident, by the use of an oil which is perfectly safe.

Such we think the "Astral" oil to be, (standing as it does a test of 145 degs, against 110 degs, of best Kerosene) and we feel that its general introduction, packed in the Guaranty Patent Cans and duction, packed in the duranty Fatent Cans and sealed in the manner which you have adopted as security against adulteration, would materially diminish the fire risk on all buildings in which kerosene is stored or used.

And all kinds of Shell Fish. STALLS Nos. 40, 41. 42, CALIFORNIA MARKET Eutrance on California street.

During the season when the Gold Harvest is generally suspended, and the reapers of the glittering crop seek the cities to enjoy themselves, there is, of course, a good deal of conviviality among this enterprising and hard-working class; but dram-drinking is not carried to the excess that it was some years ago. This may fairly be attributed to the growing distaste for raw spirits engendered by the use of HOSTFTTER'S STOMACH BIT-TERS. This famous stomachic is in universal favor with the miners. They take it with them to the interior, and use it regularly, not as a beverage, but as a strength sustaining tonic, and an antidote to the unhealthy influences to which they are exposed in the localities where the labor; and, on returning to the cities and towns, they find in its refreshing and invigorating properties the best safe-guard, not only against the diseases, but against the dissipation of crowded communities. It is one of the peuliarities of the preparation that it is an antidote to inebriety. Those who take it as an appetizer and invigorant, aver that they have no desire whatever for liquor of any description, and, whatever fanatics may think to the contrary, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS is a powerful ally of the temperance cause. It is because unmedicated alcohol weakens the stomach and the nervous system by its reaction, that it begets a craving for itself. It excites, and when the excitement passes off, debility ensues, and more fuel is needed to renew the artificial fire that has, so to speak, burnt itself out. But the effect of the great vegetable tonic and alterative is to invigorate the system permanently and healthfully.

This celebrated medicine has won a deservedly high reputation as an alieviator of pain and a preserver of health. It has become a household remedy, from the fact that it gives immediate and permanent relief. It is a purely vegetable preparation, made from the best and purest materials, safe to keep and to use in every family. It is resafe te keep and to use in every family. It is recommended by physicians and persons of all classes, and to day, after a public trial of thirty years
—the average life of man—it stands unrivalled and unexcelled, spreading its usefulness over the wide world. Its large and increasing sale affords positive evidence of its enduring fame. We do not deem it necessary to say much in its favor as one small bottle will do more to convince you of its efficacy than all the advertisements in the world.
Give it one fair trial and you would not be without it for ten times-its cost.

New York, August 15th, 1868. Allow me to call your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EX TRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JU-NIPER BERRIES.

A. RO. MERRY, CH.A. Mode of Preparation .- Buchu, in vacao. Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now to use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopæa, nor is it a Syrup-and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this you have the knowledge o the ingredients and the mode of preparation. Hoping that you will favor it with a trial. and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation. With a feeling of confidence, I am, very respectfully, H. T. HELMBOLD, Chemist and Druggist 19 Years' experience.

[From the largest Manufacturing chemists in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1854. "I am acquainted with Mr. Helmbold he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, ngs of Evil Horror of Disease, or Forebod in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The constitution, once effected with Organinc Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system; which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity en-

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT OF BUCHU, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequaled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated State of the Uretus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copavia Mercury, in all these diseases.

) willing HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

This Remedy does not simply relieve for a short time, but it produces perfect and per-manent cures of the worst cases of Chronic Nasal manent cures of the worst cases of Chronic Nasal Catarrh, and I will pay $500 reward for a case that I cannot cure. "Cold in the head," and Catarrhal Headache are cured with a few applications. If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, stopping up of the nose at times partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull, have pain or pressure in the head, you may rest assured that you have Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manife-ting half of the above symptoms, terminate in Consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. I will send my pamphlet on Catarrh to any address free.
